

The Humane Metropolis:
People and Nature in the 21st Century City

Rutherford H. Platt, Editor
University of Massachusetts Press and Lincoln Institute of Land Policy, 2006

Table of Contents

Introduction: Humanizing the Exploding Metropolis, Rutherford H. Platt

Part I: “The Man Who Loved Cities:” Remembering William H. Whyte

Whyte on Whyte: A Walk in the City, Eugenie L. Birch

Holly Whyte’s Journalism of Place, Charles E. Little

Box: The Energizer, Ann Louise Strong

Box: Sowing the Seeds, Thomas Balsley

Box: The Wit and Wisdom of Holly Whyte, Albert LaFarge

Part II: From City Parks to Urban Green Infrastructure

City Parks: New Roles and Challenge, Peter Harnik

Sustaining Urban Parks: The Role of Place Attachment, Robert L. Ryan,

Promoting Health and Fitness Through Urban Design, Anne C. Lusk

Respecting Nature’s Design in Metropolitan Portland, Michael C. Houck

A Metropolitan New York Biosphere Reserve? William D. Solecki and Cynthia Rosenzweig

Part III: Restoring Urban Nature: Projects and Process

Restoring Urban Ecology: The Fresh Kills Experience, Steven F. Clemants and Steven N. Handel

Urban Watershed Restoration: The Milwaukee River Case, Laurin N.
Sievert

Green Futures for Industrial Brownfields, Christopher De Sousa

Ecological Citizenship: The Democratic Promise of Restoration Efforts, Andrew Light

Part IV: A More Humane Metropolis for Whom?

Race, Poverty and the Humane Metropolis, Carl Anthony

Fortress America: Separate and Not Equal, Edward J. Blakely

"The Organization Man" in the 21st Century:, Deborah Popper and Frank J. Popper

Sustainability Programs in the South Bronx, Thalya Parilla

Part V: Designing A More Humane Metropolis

The Smile Index, Andrew G. Wiley-Schwartz

Zoning Incentives to Create Public Spaces: Lessons from New York City, Jerold S. Kayden

Criteria for a Greener Metropolis, Mary Rickel Pelletier

Building the Right Shade of Green, Colin M. Cathcart

Green Urbanism in European Cities, Timothy Beatley

Epilogue: Pathways to More Humane Urban Places, Rutherford H. Platt